I have just finished reading Chasers by James Phelan (Alone #1) after starting it yesterday and it is my new favourite. It's one of those books where I want to go tell everyone about it straight after I have read it and persuade everyone to read it. I'm so happy I read this book (I was meant to be reading Hunger by Michael Grant and then the book for my book club, but felt like reading

Phelan did a great job of keeping the story moving, from the very first chapter Chasers was action packed and full of intrigue. I genuinely enjoyed the plot of this book and the thought of all these kids living in the Rainbow room is pretty awesome. I enjoyed how Phelan showed the day-to-day activities and how now that the world was in ruins they needed to change the way they did things.
