The other, which from overuse is now a collection of loose pages nested in a cover, is Alex Flinn's FADE TO BLACK. Finally getting my own chance to read it last night, I had to grip it with two hands so that it wouldn't fall all over the room. "Night is when I think about dying. That's what I'm doing now, after midnight in the quiet hospital."

Alex Flinn's Fade To Black is no exception and draws a bigger picture around people deemed "different". The story is told through three different perspectives. From the point of view of the victim, Alex Crusan first, an HIV-positive teenager whose car has been shattered by a baseball bat while he was in the car.

Alex Flinn - Wikipedia

Fade to Black Fade to Black (2005) is perhaps Flinn's second-best known realistic novel and a frequent high school required read. Alex Crusan, a 16-year-old HIV-positive high school junior, is attacked in his car early one morning and sent to the hospital.
