The Lost Girl, by Sangu Mandanna, is a poignant study of the meaning of humanity and the origins of life. I've read all the reviews, all 108 of them, and I'm surprised not to find very much narrative on the facet of the story that struck me the hardest, Eva's inability to choose her own destiny. She was basically raised as a slave, forced to learn about and memorize the experiences

THE LOST GIRL was the most honest portrait of grief and loss that I've read in a long time. Filled with heartache, love, and things that would stir Mary Shelley's ghost, this is a story not to be missed. (Lauren DeStefano, New York Times bestselling author of The Chemical Garden trilogy)
