The aims of this book are to discover how significant academic work in international relations has become for practitioners involved in policy formulation and implementation, and to examine the impact of the policy community on academic work and academic values.

The place of theory in the practice of human rights | Two ...

Theory and policy are two sides of the same coin in that they both represent a priori outlines which can then be tested empirically, in the first case against something called truth and in the second against political practice. Some academics and policy-makers have a joint interest in broad outlines, while others form an alliance over their concern for detail. The central distinction
